RSHE

3 I's: Intent, Implementation, Impact

Intent

Northfield's RSHE curriculum is linked to our four key drivers: community, be healthy, life-long learners and four corners: school, local, national and global. Threads that run through these drivers include those related to the RSHE curriculum such as respect and tolerance, belonging, healthy lifestyle, staying safe, mental wellbeing, life skills, careers knowledge and geographical mobility. Our RSHE curriculum is a tool to ensure that our next generation is educated and well-supported to be part of their community and wider world by having the knowledge and skills to build healthy relationships, have a healthy lifestyle, stay safe online, manage feelings and understanding money and discrimination through understanding of British Values. Through the promotion of oracy, the inclusion of protected characteristics and the links to British Values, Talking Points helps pupils develop a sense of aspiration and ambition for life in modern Britain.

Talking Points is primarily used for teaching RSHE; Yasmin and Tom is another scheme which aims to prepare and help pupils navigate their emotions, relationships, and sense of self both within school and beyond. By the end of their primary education, pupils will have learnt about caring friendships, respectful relationships, online relationships and being safe. Talking Points covers these areas each year increasing in complexity and reinforcing previous learning.

Implementation

The Talking Points scheme of work uses picture books as a starting point to get all pupils talking about their own and other's health, wellbeing, emotions, relationships, current local and global issues, and protected characteristics. Staff promote a safe environment in which pupils feel comfortable to discuss trickier topics using storytelling. Due to the repetitive, visual nature of the scheme, pupils revisit key learning points both within and across year groups and key stages from Year 1 through to Year 6 ensuring children know and remember more. To teach Talking Points effectively, each class has a set of books needed, or a link to an online version of the book. Power point slides used in lessons include links to British Values and Protected Characteristics, teacher notes and a detailed progression map. The use of choice activities ensures each session offers a task for all learners including those with SEND. Assessment is through pre and post-tests, questions about the text, tasks and a challenge statement to deepen the understanding of the Talking Point, showing progression in knowledge. In RSE lessons, at an age-appropriate level, using a scheme with Yasmin and Tom further explores RSE and supports teachers to teach explicit aspects of relationship and sex education.

Impact

Northfield pupils will talk with confidence about the key areas of RSHE. They will form strong and healthy relationships and realise this takes kindness, resilience, and perseverance. Pupils will understand and develop self-respect and self-worth and will demonstrate key personal attributes which contribute to life in modern Britain. Also, pupil will understand and become positive and healthy citizens in their communities. As Talking Points provides teaching opportunities for British Values and Protected Characteristics pupils will develop a secure and deep understanding of these. They will be able to explain these well and give examples of how they are lived out within school life and beyond.
